What training is needed to work in this field?	Years of cooking. Cooking school is helpful but not completely necessary.
What is a typical week like or what do you spend most of your time doing in your job?	I do not cook full-time because my business is still growing to that level. However, each week I usually field some queries from people looking for catering, write a proposal, seal a deal, and cater for someone.
What is the job outlook for this field?	Pretty good as people become more health conscious.
What are the benefits of working in this field?	You get to make the menu, so you have creative control over the food and the ingredients used. It's fun to research recipes or make up new ones.
What advice or other information do you want to share with someone considering this field?	Having a head for business and wanting to market yourself are just as important as your cooking skills. Find a mentor or do several internships if you can.
